What is culture? Here is one viewpoint.

- "Culture" refers to a group or community which shares common experiences that shape the way its members understand the world. It includes groups that we are born into, such as race, national origin, gender, class, or religion. It can also include a group we join or become part of. For example, it is possible to acquire a new culture by moving to a new country or region, by a change in our economic status, or by becoming disabled. When we think of culture this broadly we realize we all belong to many cultures at once.

CASE MANAGEMENT

Case manager: A professional who oversees the provision of a variety of specialized services to ensure that they are delivered in a fashion that represents an effective response to the whole problem.

Case services - Personal social services: meant to help those with personal maladjustments, problems, illness, or other difficulties. (Social Work & Social Welfare in Canada)
Case Management

Ontario Settlement/ Guidelines/ ISAP Narrative Report/ Revised June 2005

Case Management is a service which develops case plans for the evaluation and delivery of settlement services. It involves assistance in planning and arranging for services; assesses the individual’s needs; coordinates the delivery of needed services; ensures that services are obtained in accordance with the case plan; and follows up and monitors progress to ensure that services are having a beneficial impact on the individual. For the purpose of the ISAP program in the Ontario Region, case management is an approach to planning done by an agency settlement worker for the systematic delivery of a series of ISAP and other services, to a newcomer, over a period of time.

Employing case management to assist individual newcomers should be based on the individual's needs rather than routinely applied to all newcomers approaching an agency for services. Most newcomers would not require this rather intensive ongoing approach to meeting their settlement and integration needs. Services, supports, and programs would be linked to newcomers’ identified settlement needs. The newcomers would be assisted in determining their strengths/needs and assisted in accessing the identified services within or outside of the settlement agency.

The process would be respectful of each individual and family served. Newcomers would be supported through the process of service negotiation which may include activities such as the case worker taking an active role in the appointments with other service providers or specialized workers assisting in making the appointments, and confirming that they are completed. Efforts would be made to ensure that newcomers could utilize and expand their formal and informal network of supports. Case managed newcomers and activities should be evaluated at regular intervals and upon closure of the case to ensure that positive results are being achieved.

Project Support and Monitoring: Follow up activities are understood as enquiries aimed to assess referrals, appropriateness of services provided and results achieved.
Service Bridging: Please refer to the definition in the contribution agreement. If more than one staff attends an event, please only count as one event.

II CONFRONTATION WITH HOST SOCIETY

III ADJUSTMENT TO HOST SOCIETY

IV STAGE OF RECONSTRUCTION
Differences between Refugees & Migrants

- Refugees do not choose to leave their homeland. They flee in response to a crisis. They have little choice about where they go and by what means they will travel.
- They have no time to pack or to distribute possessions. Almost everything is left behind.
- Refugees, due to their hurried, often secret departure, are unprepared emotionally for leaving, and may not have time to farewell loved ones.
- Refugees often flee without any documentation whatsoever.

- Migrants choose to leave their homeland and settle in a country of their choice.
- They arrange the most suitable method of travel and pack the possessions they wish to take.
- They can sell or dispose of possessions they don’t wish to take.
- Migrants have time to prepare emotionally for their departure and to farewell friends and family appropriately.
- Migrants take with them their travel documents, passports, and other documentation, including educational qualifications.
Differences between Refugees & Migrants

- Refugees must often leave family members behind.
- Refugees, although they dream of returning home, know that this is unlikely to happen.
- Refugees arrive in their new country ill-prepared and often traumatized.
- They have little in the way of possessions and financial resources.
- They are often debilitated by a pervading sense of loss, grief, worry and guilt about the family left behind.
- Refugees may experience stigma and prejudice in their resettlement country in relation to cultural differences, disease prevalence, low education levels and perceived burdening of the welfare system.

- Migrants usually emigrate with their families.
- Migrants depart for their new country knowing that they can return to their homeland for visits, or return permanently if they cannot settle.
- Migrants are usually well prepared and well motivated to settle in a new country. Many will have found out about schools, employment and local conditions before they left their homeland.
- Migrants, due to their better levels of health, education and economic independence, are less likely to encounter negative attitudes in their resettlement country.
